A Certain Kind of Love

“Now, I am not running a fun club, and I am not running a dramatic show. I believe we can learn through exaltation, through ecstasy, through joy and through love. At the same time we must also keep one eye open, so to speak, on our peace, if we want strength, because strength comes out of our inner peace. A lot of people go and speak against ecstasy and they don't know what it is. A lot of people speak for it and they don't know what it is. So I find love should produce a certain kind of ecstasy and ecstasy if it is real will produce a certain kind of love.”

Sufi Ahmed Murad Chisty

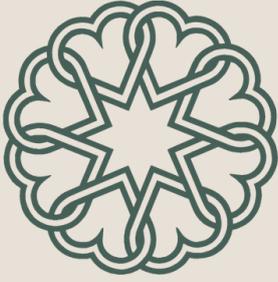

Balance Between Love & Power

The wise should balance between love and power; they should keep the love in their nature ever increasing and expanding and at the same time strengthen the will so that the heart may not easily be broken.
